Final Bulletins

Strikers Ask Plane Jobs Back

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The five-day strike at the North American Aviation Inc. plant appeared ended this afternoon following decision of the strikers to march to the factory in a body to ask to have their jobs back.

At an open air mass meeting, the strikers agreed with their leaders to return to work provided there would be no discrimination, that their union cards would not be forfeited, that they would be allowed to negotiate immediately on their original demands.

Informed of this development, Lieut.-Col. Charles E. Branshaw, who has been in charge of the factory since yesterday morning, said:

"I will study the proposal of the strikers. I can't say in advance whether they will be allowed to return in a body, but there most certainly will be no discrimination against them because they are members of a union."

Already the plant was operating at almost 15 per cent of capacity.

Robert Malloy told the union meeting:

"We will go back there wearing our union buttons all over us."

"We will go in there and organize that plant 100 per cent. We are going to make the government show its hand, whether the army is there in the interests of production, or union busting." (Earlier strike story on Page 2)

GAS CURB COMING

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada, it was learned on high authority today, definitely faces the prospect of a gasoline shortage and curtailment of consumption will be ordered in the near future.

Areas most affected are the Maritimes, Quebec and Ontario and British Columbia, dependent on supplies brought to the Dominion by tanker.

Losses 3 to 1

LONDON (CP)—For every British aircraft lost during the first four months of this year, at least three Axis machines have been destroyed, Sir Archibald Sinclair, Secretary of State for Air, told the House of Commons today.

48 Survivors Safe

OTTAWA (CP)—Ten officers and 38 men, survivors of a British freighter torpedoed in mid-Atlantic, are safe in Canada.

Frank Walsh, formerly of Saint John, N.B., was the only Canadian in the group.

29 Enlisted

Twenty-nine men joined the army in British Columbia yesterday. A similar number were enlisted Saturday and one on Sunday.

Military district headquarters returns for Monday are:

Victoria	1
Vancouver	10
Cranbrook	3
Kamloops	8
Prince George	1
New Westminster	6

Total for all B.C. 29

To fill British Columbia's quota by the end of June, 120 enlistments a day are required.

British, Free French At Gates of Damascus

Associated and Canadian Press
British and Free French columns are within sight of Damascus, capital of Syria, but it remains to be seen whether the defenders will offer resistance outside the ancient city, an authoritative British spokesman in Cairo said tonight.

Earlier reports from Free French headquarters in Cairo had announced its forces in Syria were near Damascus and other French sources here said they were expected to enter the city tonight or early tomorrow.

Middle East headquarters there had previously announced the penetration of Allied forces in Syria "is proceeding satisfactorily and the general impression is that Arab reaction to the arrival of our forces is favorable."

Assurance Given

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States gave categorical assurances to Portugal today that it "harbors no aggressive intentions" against the sovereignty or integrity of any Portuguese islands.

Darlan Pleads

VICHY (AP)—Vice-Premier Admiral Jean Darlan tonight appealed to the French nation for unreserved support for his policy of collaboration with Germany in building a "new Europe."

Darlan, who in his last message to the nation delivered a bitter attack against Britain, did not even mention the British and Free French march into French-occupied Syria in this broadcast to the nation.

His message was an impassioned, renewed appeal for unity. He exhorted the French not to believe criticism of the policy of collaboration with Germany.

He berated what he called "sterile arguments and acid criticism" of policy and those "numerous ones who are seeking to black out the understanding of the nation."

12 Bodies Found

ALBANY, Texas (AP)—The bodies of 12 persons drowned by a flash flood which swept in darkness through this town early today were recovered by rescue workers. Late this afternoon the workers said they had no way of accounting for other possible victims.

Collapse of a city water supply dam caused the flood.

Claim 9 Ships Sunk

ROME (AP)—The Italian high command claimed tonight that Italian submarines sank nine ships totaling 63,000 tons in a recent attack on a British convoy in the Atlantic.

(Comment on or confirmation of this claim was not available in London.)

Churchill Says Battle of Crete Worth While, Aids Swing Nile Fight

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill faced his critics in the House of Commons today. They demanded more vigorous war strategy, a new and stronger plan of warfare and a drastic shake-up in leadership.

The Prime Minister's chief critic was Leslie Hore-Belisha, former war secretary, and to him Mr. Churchill made sharp reply. Mr. Hore-Belisha, dropped from the cabinet in January, 1940, left "production and supply" in a "lamentable" state after two years and seven months in office, the Prime Minister said.

One interested witness during the debate was the Prime Minister's wife. The Russian Ambassador, Ivan Maisky, heard the proceedings from the diplomatic gallery of the emergency House of Commons.

Nazis' May Loss 257,000 Tons

A disclosure made by Mr. Churchill was that Britain in May "sank, captured or saw scuttled" 257,000 tons of German shipping and this "has a bearing on any sea-borne invasion."

Discussing the loss of Crete, the Prime Minister declared this "sombre and ferocious battle" was "well worth fighting," and that it would play an "extremely important part" in the defence of the Nile Valley.

"Suppose we had never gone to Greece?" he asked in characteristic language. "And suppose we had never defended Crete? Where would the Germans be now?"

In a voice throbbing with passion, Mr. Churchill accepted "full responsibility" for the Crete campaign, and he said the lessons of Crete would be applied to the defence of Britain against air-borne and sea-borne attack.

Urges Air Force For Army

The general tenor of criticism of the administration was that the Royal Air Force, heroes in the Battle of Britain last fall, had failed the army and navy in the Crete campaign.

Mr. Hore-Belisha vigorously urged a separate air force for the army.

The House, alternately cheering and silent as Mr. Hore-Belisha reviewed Britain's fight in the eastern Mediterranean, heard him conclude:

"I deem it my duty to warn the country that it is only by handling our problems with greater vigor and imagination that we can obtain victory."

The former War Secretary preceded this statement with criticism of Britain's war strategy and questioned the basis of Mr. Churchill's "optimism."

"It is evident, he said, 'that in strategy there has been on our side no adjustment to the tempo or to the resources of the enemy.'

"It is desired on all sides to strengthen the Prime Minister's hand. He has referred to the equipment situation in terms of optimism."

Mr. Hore-Belisha quoted the Prime Minister as saying strengthening of supplies in the Mediterranean was limited entirely by the problem of transportation and then, in a questioning voice, added:

"I do not know how far the satisfaction the Prime Minister has expressed is positive or relative."

Quotes Official Of O.P.M. in U.S.

He quoted W. B. Black, deputy director of production management in the United States, as saying "there is not one shred of evidence that Britain's industrial and military strength plus what we are sending and have promised to send at the present time is strengthening her position."

One hundred more British fighter planes in Greece would have provided the margin for successful defence, Mr. Hore-Belisha said in criticism of the R.A.F.

In Crete, he went on, the official R.A.F. view "persisted that an air-borne invasion was impossible."

He quoted Air Commodore G. C. Goddard as saying on May 22 that glider, parachute and crash-landed troops could not by themselves capture Crete and observed this "was two days after our air support had been withdrawn" in the face of Nazi dive-bombing attacks.

"Without overhead protection," the navy suffered casualties greater than inflicted on Italian seapower at the Battle of Cape Matapan, Mr. Hore-Belisha declared, even though, he said, the lesson that the navy needed a co-operating air force should have been learned in Norway.

"Aircraft must be recognized as an integral part of the navy and army as any other weapon," he asserted, adding that "present arrangements have been defended hitherto on the ground that they work; the answer given in Crete is plainly that they do not."

Mr. Hore-Belisha argued that the Air Ministry "will always attach greater importance to having machines for long distance bombing whereas the army wants dive bombers and transport planes."

The Fleet Air Arm, the navy's own force, has shown itself worthy of expansion, he said.

Lacked A.A.'s For Crete Battle

Prime Minister Churchill, during his direct comments on the withdrawal from Crete, said there were no more British airdromes on the island because there were not enough anti-aircraft guns "of high and low ceiling" to defend a "great number" of fields.

"All this time," he added, "the Battle of the Atlantic has been going on."

"A very great number of guns which might have been usefully employed in Crete have been mounted and are being mounted on ships to beat off German aircraft, whose depredations have been notably lessened thereby."

Mr. Churchill said a "man must be a perfect fool who thinks we have large quantities of anti-aircraft guns and aircraft lying about unused at the present time."

"It was four years ago that I mentioned to the House that the Germans already had 1,500 mobile anti-aircraft guns in addition to the whole of their static anti-aircraft artillery," he said.

"Since then they have been making them at a great rate and have conquered more than all they want from countries they have overthrown.

"The right honorable gentleman (Mr. Hore-Belisha) made a very cogent and moderate contribution to the debate, but used a very different tone in a speech which he recently delivered in the country and this makes it necessary to say that the state in which our army was left when he ended his tenure at the war office was lamentable."

Short of Supplies Of Essentials

Mr. Churchill went on: "We were very short of every essential supply and particularly of those special classes of weapons—A.A. guns, anti-tank guns and tanks—which have proved themselves vital in modern war."

At this point Mr. Hore-Belisha broke in to object.

"I do not know why the Prime Minister should say I left the army in a lamentable condition," he declared.

"That is quite out of accord with what he said after the retreat from Dunkerque, that we had lost the finest lot of equipment which had ever left these shores."

'Dismal Legacy' For Government

The Prime Minister replied he was not dealing with the equipment of the recruits who went to France and "who, naturally, drained the rest of our forces," but with "the fact that the equipment of our army at that time was of a most meagre and deficient character."

"I am not throwing all the blame on Mr. Hore-Belisha," he said, "but when he sets himself up as a judge of others who have inherited his dismal legacy, it is only fair to point out he is one of the last people to criticize."

The House cheered the Prime Minister's barbed words.

No War Cabinet For All Empire

The Prime Minister rejected a suggestion that he form an Empire war cabinet to include representatives of the Dominions.

The proposal was made by Edgar Granville, National Liberal, who had raised the question in the House on several previous occasions.

The member also suggested the Statute of Westminster be amended to enable Dominion prime ministers to attend sittings of the House of Commons during visits to Britain for consultation with the war cabinet.

He recalled that Prime Minister R. G. Menzies of Australia recently addressed the Canadian House of Commons. He asked Mr. Churchill if it would not be a good precedent to copy in Britain.

"The answer is no," the Prime Minister replied. "Anyone who has had any experience in the House of Commons will realize that such a step would be a complete departure in principle from courses we have followed for many generations."

Mr. Churchill replied "I do not" when Mr. Granville asked if he thought his suggestion would be "a very good way of getting over difficulties in the Dominions with regard to this."

Over the $3,000,000-mark

Bond Buyers Behind Record of Last War

Victoria will go well over the $3,000,000 mark in its drive to secure $5,400,000 in the $600,000,000 Victory Loan.

At noon today Greater Victoria had subscribed $2,959,800, as follows: Victoria City, $1,425,900; Oak Bay, $596,000; Saanich and Gulf Islands, $449,750; Duncan, $345,000, and Esquimalt, $143,150.

Canada has now gone over the half-way mark in its battle for victory. Last night a total of $309,897,400 had been subscribed across the country.

Yesterday's subscriptions amounted to $33,674,700. To put the campaign over the top by June 21, Canadians will have to subscribe this amount each day.

So far 292,566 individuals have bought bonds; the total yesterday was 38,329.

"While these totals exceed those of the first and second war loans by a substantial margin, they still fall far short of the achievements marked up in the victory loans of the 1914-18 war," said the loan committee in Ottawa.

The Jubilee Hospital Alumnae, meeting last night, gave orders for a $500 bond.

Largest subscription announced today was from the London Life Insurance Company for a $10,000,000 bond.

Other big subscribers today were B.C. Power Corporation, $2,000,000; Brewers and Distillers Co., Vancouver, $100,000; Ford Motor Company of Canada, $3,000,000; Canadian International Paper Company, Montreal, $1,500,000; Howard Smith Paper Mills Limited, Montreal, $1,000,000; Merrill, Ring and Wilson Limited, $100,000; Kelly, Douglas Co., $150,000; Evans, Coleman and Gilly Co., $100,000; Gault Brothers, $50,000; Gold Bent Mining Company, $50,000.

The 4,000 employees of the John Inglis Company of Toronto, engaged on war work, each purchased a bond.

2 Japanese Held In U.S. as Spies

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two Japanese and a former United States navy yeoman are in custody here today on spy charges. They are Cmdr. Itaru Tatabana, 39, of the Japanese navy, a registered foreign agent and a special student at the University of Southern California; Torzichi Kono, 55, who had for 18 years served as secretary and valet to film comedian Charlie Chaplin, and Al D. Blake, former United States navy yeoman.

Flying Student Killed

EDMONTON (CP)—John William Dodds, a student at the No. 16 elementary flying training school here, was killed today when an airplane crashed west of the Edmonton city limits. He was a son of J. F. Dodds of Edmonton.

Duce Defies U.S. To Declare War

ROME (AP)—Mussolini virtually defied the United States today to declare war against the Axis.

Addressing the Chamber of Fasces and Guilds on the anniversary of Italy's entrance into the war—his speech also being broadcast to the nation by radio—he declared Japan would be loyal to her pact with Germany and Italy in the event of "American aggression against the Axis."

Envoys from countries in the German-Japanese-Italian tripartite pact heard Mussolini's speech, but conspicuously absent from the diplomatic gallery was United States Ambassador William Phillips.

NOT BOTHERED BY U.S.

"It should be known that American intervention does not bother us excessively," Mussolini declared in his 50-minute speech.

"An explicit declaration of war would not modify the actual situation, which is one of de facto war, if not de jure (formally)."

"American intervention, even completely employed, would be too late, and if not too late would not change the terms of the problem."

"American intervention will not give Britain victory, but will prolong the war. It will not limit the space of the war, but will extend it beyond the oceans. It will transform the United States regime into an authoritarian, totalitarian regime compared with which the forerunner European regime—Fascist and Nazi—will find themselves far surpassed and perfected."

U.S. VESSEL TORPEDOED

By Waldemar Lucio Pereira, Captain of the Brazilian Ss. Osorio
Copyright, 1941, by the Associated Press

ABOARD THE SS. OSORIO—On June 8, at 9 in the evening, in latitude 0 46 north and longitude 37 37 west, I rescued 11 survivors in one lifeboat of the North American ship Robin Moor, which was torpedoed May 21 at the position latitude 6 15 north and longitude 25 30 west.

Their names are John J. Bannigan, Karl Nilson, John Sanderlin, William S. Carr, Peter Buss, Donald Schabiele, H. O. Rice, R. Carlisle, Antonio Santos, Hugh Murphy and P. C. Eccles.

The saved members of the crew declared there were three more lifeboats with 28 members of the crew and seven passengers including three women and one child.

The commander of the Brazilian ship Tamandare which I also requested to investigate, said that about 1 p.m. yesterday he found pieces of baggage consisting of one suitcase and children's toys.

Unfortunately nothing more has been found up to now. (This radiogram was sent at midnight, eastern standard time.)

Among the 11 rescued are three officers.

We are continuing to Recife (Pernambuco), Brazil, where we expect to arrive tomorrow night.

GERMAN ALTITUDE
BERLIN (AP)—German spokesmen said today that "roundabout" reports of the sinking of the United States ship Robin Moor are "confusing, unclear and contradictory." He added that "authentic reports" are awaited.

Army Fliers Locate Missing U.S. Bomber

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Army fliers today located a missing U.S. army bomber from the air but were unable to discern "no visible sign of personnel."

The ship, the fliers reported to the Fort Douglas base, appeared not badly broken up. It lay on the top of a knoll, near the highway between Evanston and Lyman, Wyo.

Ground crews, which have been operating in the vicinity since early yesterday, were guided to the scene by radio from the ship.

U.S. Railmen Ask Higher Pay Scale

CHICAGO (AP)—Representatives of 1,150,000 organized United States railroad workers formally demanded higher wage scales of the carrier managements today.

An indication of management reaction came last week when the Western Association of Railroad Executives described the demands as "unreasonable."

'Britain's War Achievements of Year Beyond Expectations'—Churchill

LONDON (AP)—Following is a partial text of Prime Minister Churchill's statement in the House of Commons today:

No one, however ministerially minded, could possibly complain of the tone, temper and matter of this debate. The kind of criticism we have had today—some of it very searching—is the kind that the government not only accept but welcome.

However, the way in which this debate came about was calculated to give one the feeling of a challenge to the security of administration. From the point of view of the advantage of the country, that raises serious considerations. There are all kinds of paragraphs and reports in the newspapers that there is grave uneasiness and unrest. That being so, one is bound to take a serious view, because of the interests confided to our care.

It would be a mistake for the House to get into the habit of calling for explanations on the various vicissitudes of this dangerous and widespread struggle.

Must Avoid Giving Enemy Information

In the first place, no full explanation can possibly be given without revealing valuable information to the enemy.

There is always a danger that a minister in my position may be seeking to vindicate the course we have pursued and say something which may supply the enemy with some information about which he is in doubt.

The heads of the dictator governments are not under similar pressure to excuse any ill success that may befall them. But I am in the service of the crown and I am always at the disposal of the House of Commons.

I have not heard that Hitler had to attend the Reichstag when he sent the Bismarck on her disastrous cruise when, after waiting a few weeks, she might have gone out accompanied by the Tirpitz. I have not heard any statement of Mussolini's for having lost two-thirds of his empire and having left about 200,000 prisoners in our hands.

It would be better if I were permitted to choose occasions for making statements on the war.

Effort to See Vast Scene as Whole

As to the fighting in Crete, it is only one part of an important and complicated campaign being fought in the Middle East.

To select one particular sector of our widely-extended front for parliamentary debate is a partial and misleading method of examining the conduct of the war.

The vast scene can only be surveyed as a whole and should not be debated piecemeal.

There also comes into the picture the distribution of our resources to meet the many calls upon them.

It is asked why it was, when we had Crete in our possession for more than six months, we did not construct numerous airfields and place them in a high state of defence.

Everyone will admit it would have been a mistake to make a great number of airfields unless we could find the A.A. (anti-aircraft) guns and the aircraft.

Unless we had that it would simply have facilitated the descent upon the island.

Long Voyage By Way of Cape

We had to consider whether our airfields, our air factories and our ports and cities should be further denuded for the sake of the war in the Middle East. Everything we send to the Middle East is out of action for the best part of three months if it has to go round the Cape.

We provided in Crete a deterrent to enemy attack sufficient to require a major effort on his part, but to attempt to be safe everywhere is to make sure of being strong nowhere.

Violent Speeches Cause Uncertainty

Extremely violent speeches have been made which have been doing a great deal of harm.

I have received information the uncertainty which they from different countries about if we are attacked we shall counter-attack.

So much for the difficulty in which we stand in the matter of the A.A. guns.

The output is at last rapidly expanding, but the fact remains our outputs are incomparably inferior in numbers to those possessed by the Germans and every claim has to be weighed against every other claim.

Slow Method Of Sending Planes

Another general question is why we have not enjoyed a much stronger and much larger air force in the Middle East.

I can only say this: From the moment when the Battle of Britain was decided in our favor in September-October last year we have been and are still sending aircraft as fast as possible to the Middle East by every route and every method.

We have not been hampered in this matter as we were in the case of A.A. guns, but the problem has been to send them out.

The Germans have the advantage of permanent air fields in Europe and can send their servicing and personnel and stores by the grand continental expresses.

One has to compare this process with sending airplanes packed in crates, put upon ships and sent through great ocean spaces until they reach the Cape, unpacking them and setting them up again.

I can give the House an assurance that we have done, are doing, and will do, our utmost to build up the largest possible air force in the Middle East and it is not a question of aircraft but solely of transportation in the sense of the time it takes to transfer them under conditions of the present war.

It is not aircraft but transportation which is the limiting factor at this end.

This is primarily a matter for the commanders-in-chief in the Middle East, although His Majesty's government share to the full their responsibility for what ever is done.

Chiefs of Staff In Constant Touch

Co-operation and co-ordination between services is carried to a very high pitch. The chief air officer lives in the same house in Cairo as the commander-in-chief. The naval commander-in-chief has to be at sea very often.

The idea that any one of these problems would be studied by one without close association with the other is quite illusory.

It must not be forgotten that apart from the effort in Greece which was so very costly in aircraft, the situation in Palestine and Iraq as well as Syria has to be considered.

Winding up in Abyssinia also makes a very heavy demand upon aircraft and the situation in the Western Desert has also to be considered.

It is no use trying to judge these matters without full knowledge.

Early Decision To Aid Greece

Compatible with the execution of operations in March we decided to go to the aid of Greece in accordance with our treaty obligations. This exposed us to defeat by overwhelming numbers in Greece unless Yugoslavia played her part or unless the Greek army could be extricated to hold a narrower line.

If Greece was overrun it seemed probable Crete would be the next object of attack.

It was borne in upon us that if the attack on Crete was made it would be primarily in airborne attack for which a vastly superior air force would be available.

The question was whether we should try to defend Crete or yield it without a fight.

No one who bears the responsibility for the defence of Crete was ignorant of the fact that conditions provided only the most meagre air support for troops in the island or for the fleet operating around it.

It was not a fact that dawned upon the military and other authorities after the decision had been taken. It was the foundation of the choice.

The choice was whether Crete should be defended without effective air support or whether the Germans should be permitted to occupy it without opposition.

It has been said that you should never fight without superior, or at least ample, air support. It is not a question between what is good and what is bad. The choice is between two very terrible alternatives: "Must you yield an important key position, one after another?"

War's Course Changed By Fight

Suppose we had never gone to Greece. And suppose we had never defended Crete? Where would the Germans be now?

Suppose we had simply resigned the territory and strategic points to them without a fight, might they not at this early stage in the campaign of 1941 already be masters of Syria and Iraq, and preparing themselves for an advance into Persia?

The House will see that there are some arguments at least which deserve to be considered before you can adopt the rule that you have got to have a certainty to win at any point, and that if you have not got it, it is better to clear out beforehand.

I take the fullest responsibility for that decision (to hold Crete), but the chiefs of staff, the defence committee and Gen. Wavell thought not only that Crete ought to be defended, but that in spite of the lack of air support we had a good chance of winning the battle.

There were no illusions about the scale of the enemy's airborne attack, and it turned out the enemy was prepared to pay an almost unlimited price; and his resources when concentrated on a particular point may often be overwhelming at that point.

The Rt. Honorable Gentleman (Mr. Hore-Belisha) referred to broadcasts given by Maj.-Gen. Collins and Air Commodore Goddard.

I take no responsibility for those statements or for any others which may be made. These officers are not acquainted with the control of affairs. (Members: "Stop them broadcasting.")

It is not possible for the head of the government or for the chiefs of staffs to "veto" these weekly statements beforehand, but I think the matter must certainly be reconsidered.

Combined Action By Army, Fleet

We hoped 15,000 to 30,000 good troops with artillery and a proportion of tanks, aided by Greek forces, would be able to destroy parachute and glider landings of the enemy and prevent him from using airfields or harbors while the navy held off or destroyed the sea attack.

There was a time limit, however, and the action of the navy in maintaining the northern sea guard without adequate air defence was bound to be very costly.

We could only stand a certain proportion of naval losses before the seaguard fleet had to be withdrawn.

If in the meanwhile the army could succeed in biting off the head of this terrific apparatus of air-borne attack before the time limit was reached then we would have had to prepare all over again.

We might well have, for a time at least, broken it off.

I wonder what would have been said by our critics if we had given up Crete without firing a shot.

We should have been told we had surrendered to the enemy command of the eastern Mediterranean.

Crete was an extremely important salient in our line of defence. It was like Fort Duhamont in 1916 and Kamel Hill in 1918.

These were taken by the Germans but the Germans lost the war.

His Majesty's government in their responsibility to Parliament choose the best generals they can find. They set before them broad strategic operations of the campaign. They offer them such advice or counsel as they can, and they support them to the best of their power in men and munitions, and as long as they retain confidence they support them with loyal comradeship in failure or success.

It is impossible to go into tactical details.

Defeat is bitter; it is no use trying to explain defeat. People do not like defeat and they do not like explanations, however elaborate or plausible.

There is only one answer to defeat. The only answer to defeat is victory.

Anzac Troops Share With British

There is one thing I regret very much. It is that the part of this fighting in the Middle East should have fallen so heavily upon the splendid Australian and New Zealand troops.

I regret it for the reason amongst others that German propaganda is always reproaching us for fighting with other peoples' blood and will say that Britain will fight until the last Australian and New Zealand.

I was glad to see Mr. Menzies in his noble speech deal with this foul propaganda as it deserves.

There have been during 1941 almost as many British as there are Australian and New Zealand troops engaged in the Western Desert, Greece and Crete.

Losses this year are slightly heavier for British than Dominion troops, and in Crete numbers were almost equal, though British were slightly heavier. That includes killed, wounded and missing and excludes Indian and other troops.

I have asked the Secretary of State for War to have mentioned more frequently when possible the names of British regiments.

Among those that fought in Crete were the Black Watch, the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, the Lancashire Regiment, the Welch Regiment, the York and Lancaster Regiment, the Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers and a number of Royal Marines.

The Royal Marines formed the rearguard and suffered most. Of 2,000 marines, 1,400 became casualties or prisoners.

The naval loss of life in those operations exceeded 500 officers and men and we also lost 1,300 men in the Hood.

Out of 90,000 lost so far in this war at home and abroad, at least 85,000 came from the Mother Country. I repudiate the German propaganda both on behalf of the Mother Country and Australia and New Zealand.

It might well be asked why, having begun the Battle of Crete, did we not persist in the defence?

If you could bring off 17,000 safely to return to Egypt, why not reinforce with 17,000 and carry on the battle?

I have tried to explain in a simple way that the moment it was proved we could not crush air-borne landings before the fleet losses became too heavy to keep off sea-borne landings, Crete was lost.

It was one thing to take off 17,000 men with side arms and another to land 17,000 with guns and vehicles. I think it was a remarkable thing that so many got away.

The Battle of Crete attained a severity and fierceness which the Germans had not previously encountered in their walk through Europe.

Germans Lost 17,000, British 15,000

In killed, wounded, prisoners and missing we have lost about 15,000 men. This takes no account of the loss of Greeks and Cretans, who fought with utmost bravery.

From most precise inquiries we believe about 5,000 Germans were drowned in trying to cross the sea, and at least 12,000 were killed or wounded on the island. In addition, the air force the Germans employed sustained extraordinary losses—above 180 fighter and bomber aircraft, and at least 150 troop-carrying airplanes, and this at a time when our air strength is overtaking the enemy is important.

British Output Being Increased

There is no truth in the statement that productivity in our factories is falling at an alarming rate. It may not be going as fast as we should like, but if anyone can do anything to make it go faster he will be rendering a great service.

In guns and heavy tanks the monthly average for the first quarter of 1941 was 50 per cent greater than in first quarter of 1940. Output for the month of May, a four-week month, was the highest yet reached and more than double the monthly rate for the last quarter in 1940.

May Best Month Recently on Atlantic

The Battle of the Atlantic is also being well maintained. In January Hitler mentioned March as the peak month of his effort against us on the seas. We were to be exposed to attacks on a scale never dreamed of and there were rumors of hundreds of U-boats and masses of aircraft that were to be used against us. These rumors were spread about the world and very alarming impressions were produced.

March has come and gone; April and May have gone and we now near the middle of June. Apart from the losses incurred in the fight in the Mediterranean, which are serious, the month of May was in fact the best month we have had for some time upon the Atlantic.

Prodigious exertions have been made to bring the cargoes and protect the ships, and these exertions have not failed.

It is very much easier to sink ships than to build them or bring them safely across the ocean. We have lately been taking a stronger hand in this sinking process ourselves and it is a most astonishing fact that in the attack by incendiary bombs, which if not extinguished quickly one by one may lead to an enormous conflagration.

We are making many improvements in the defence of our air fields and in the mobility of the forces employed on that and other tasks. Nothing will be stunted and not a moment will be lost.

Nazis Drove Wounded Ahead

It is not true that the Germans clothed their parachute troops who attacked Crete in New Zealand uniforms. I gave this report to the House as it reached me from the commander-in-chief in the Middle East, but he now informs me the mistake arose from the fact that parachute troops after landing at one point drove a number of New Zealanders walking wounded with them and before them in their attack and therefore the cry arose that they were in New Zealand uniform.

There is no objection to the use of parachute troops in war so long as they are properly dressed in the uniform of their country and that uniform is distinctive.

Now I come to the Syrian operation. Let me first of all repeat, we have no territorial designs in Syria or anywhere else in French territory. We seek no colonies nor advantages of any kind for ourselves in this war.

Let none of our French friends be deceived by latest German and Vichy propaganda.

We will do all in our power to restore free (France's) freedom, but it will be for the French to aid in the restoration. There cannot be any doubt Gen. de Gaulle is a more zealous defender of France's interests than the men of Vichy whose policy is of utter subservience to the Germans.

It did not take much intelligence to see the infiltration into Syria by the Germans, and their intrigues in Iraq constituted a very great danger to the whole eastern flank of our defences in the Nile valley and the Suez Canal.

Above all, the formidable menace of an invasion of Egypt by the German army of Cyrenaica, supported by large Italian forces with German stiffening, remains our chief preoccupation in the Middle East.

We have to take all these things into consideration and I was very glad when Gen. Wavell reported he was in a position to make the advance (in co-operation with Free French which began on Sunday morning and which, so far as I have been informed up to the present, is progressing with very little opposition and favorably).

This position in Syria was very nearly gone. German poison was spreading through the country.

It is very much easier to sink ships than to build them or bring them safely across the ocean. We have lately been taking a stronger hand in this sinking process ourselves and it is a most astonishing fact that in the month of May we sank, captured or saw scuttled no less than 257,000 tons of enemy shipping although they presented a target only 1-10th of what we present to them.

While they sink along from port to port, we maintain our whole world-wide traffic with never less than 1,000 ships on the sea or less than 400 in the danger zone on any day. Yet the losses we inflicted in the month of May were in the nature of three-fourths of the losses they inflicted on us.

Achievements Of Year Viewed

This also has a bearing on the possibility of sea-borne invasion because destruction of the enemy tonnage is proceeding at a most rapid and satisfactory rate.

Nor need solid grounds for confidence and thankfulness fall from us when we look at the aspect of the war in the Middle East.

We have been at war for 21 months. Almost a year has passed since France deserted us and Italy came in against us.

If anybody had said in June last we should today hold every yard of the territories for which Great Britain is responsible in the Middle East, that we should have conquered the whole Italian Empire, that Egypt, Palestine and Iraq would have been successfully defended—anyone who said that would have been thought a foolish visionary. Yet that is the position at the moment.

It is more than three months ago since the Germans gave out they would be in Suez in a month and were telling the Spaniards that when Suez fell they were to come into the war.

Two months ago we were told we would be driven out of Tobruk or forced to capitulate, and we were also warned of a German thrust at Assuit, at the head of the Delta.

I give no guarantee. I make no promise or prediction for the future. But if the next six months, during which we must expect ever harder fighting and many disappointments, should find us in no worse position than that in which we stand today, and if after having fought so long alone against Germany and Italy and all the intrigues and treacheries of Vichy, we should still be found in six months time to be the faithful and unbeaten guardians of the Nile Valley and of the regions which lie about it—then I say that a famous chapter will have been written in the martial history of Britain and the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Bohn Aluminum Workers Out

A second walkout by C.I.O. union members in the aluminum industry today tied up six plants of the Bohn Aluminum and Brass Corporation at Detroit as army officials hoped for near normal production in the troop-guarded government commandeered North American Aviation Corporation's warplane plant at Inglewood, Calif.

Another strike threat came at the huge Consolidated Aircraft Corporation plant at San Diego, Calif., where union members voted all day on a strike call.

Yesterday C.I.O. die casters called a strike which closed the Aluminum Company of America's plant at Cleveland.

About 4,000 members of the United Automobile Workers-C.I.O. walked out at the Bohn plants even though Secretary of Labor Perkins certified the wage dispute to the Defence Mediation Board last night. The union asks a 10-cent-an-hour increase in undisclosed wage scales.

A company official said the firm had $25,000,000 worth of government contracts and that 85 per cent of production of the affected plants was in defence goods. One plant having a separate wage agreement was not affected.

Eastern Cities In Blackout

MONTREAL (CP) — French-Canada's three largest cities hid themselves in the dark in 15-minute blackout trials.

The trials in Montreal, Quebec City and Three Rivers showed organization for their concealment from enemy bombers and the protection of their population was efficient, officials said today.

A bright moon and starlit sky conspired against efforts for complete concealment and war plants, operating normally by special permission, stood out like sore thumbs.

Screaming sirens and factory whistles sounded the alert 10 minutes before lights were snapped out. Blackout time found nearly 10,000 police and civilian protection committee workers on duty in the three cities.

Montreal's Mount Royal swarmed with thousands who turned out to watch the lights go out in the streets below, and long before blackout time crowds began to gather on St. Catherine Street, which extends through the heart of the city.

Makes Car Jump

HAYES CENTER, Neb. (AP) — Farmer Reed Loomis, topping a steep hill in his car, saw too late that a bridge approach in the canyon below had been washed out. Realizing it would be futile to try to stop, he stepped on the gas and leaped the wash-out gap of 12 feet. He made it safely, but the machine's rear wheels were wrecked.

People in the News

First Peace Essential

KENT COOPER (general manager of the Associated Press): "The present war simply had to be, because the nations of the European continent had no unbiased information whatever about their neighbors and no unbiased information whatever about their own governments. ... If this war ends to our liking, the negotiators of another peace treaty could bring a happier day and neighborliness to Europe by providing for a free press as we know it here."

Britain Faces Poverty, Spiritual Riches

RT. HON. MALCOLM MACDONALD, British high commissioner to Canada, said Canada's wartime industrial development was not only an essential contribution to the war effort but also a "most important step towards the building of that great Canada which must arise after the war." He was speaking to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

"If Britain fell a victim to Hitler, the insatiable conqueror would not feel safe or satisfied in the enjoyment of his spoils unless he got a grip on North America as well," he said.

"Yes, the right of Canadians and Americans to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness is just as much in danger as those rights belonging to their fellow men in Europe."

"The most pressing task is to give weapons into the hands of our fighting men. ..."

"Britain will come out of this war in a state of material poverty such as she has not known for many generations," he said.

"But the interest which the people there will receive on their present capital expenditure of lives and resources is more precious than any material return."

"It is their liberty and happiness. Every day Britain is growing materially poorer, but every day Britain is growing spiritually richer."

Spirit Aroused

HON. GEORGES E. DANSEUR, EAU said in Quebec the entire province of Quebec was geared to the task of preserving Christian democracy in the world.

"The national spirit of Quebec—and I use the term in its true all-Canada sense—has never been aroused to so high a pitch as it is today," said Mr. Danseur.

"There will be no letting down until the day of triumph arrives and we can again look forward with our fellow Canadians from all the other provinces of our proud Dominion to following those bright paths of peace and progress we so happily traveled—together—in the past."

Depends on Money

R. L. MAITLAND, leader of the British Columbia Conservative Party, speaking in support of the Victory Loan drive, said "no greater task was ever given to any living generation that which is offered to the people of the British Empire today."

Urging support of the Victory Loan, Mr. Maitland said "when history is written, whether it be 100 or 1,000 years from now, the historian will say this was the turning point of the war. But he will only say it if the people behind the navy, army and air force do their part."

"We cannot win without the means of winning and the means of winning depend on money."

Gold Coast Governor

SIR ALAN BURNS, 54, assistant under-secretary of state for colonies since 1940, has been appointed governor and commander-in-chief of the Gold Coast.

He succeeds Sir Arnold Molson, whose extended term of office expires in October.

Fears 30 Years War

JOHN CUDAHY, former United States ambassador to Belgium, said on his return from Europe his recent interview with Hitler, as published last Friday, was "a very faithful account," written factually.

In the 1½-hour interview Hitler, he said, told him that any idea of a German invasion of the western hemisphere was "fantastic."

Returning on the American Export liner Excambion, Cudahy was asked whether he received the impression Hitler was "sincere and was telling you the truth."

"Yes, I think he believes that," replied the former diplomat. "He believes the invasion of our continent and hemisphere is fantastic."

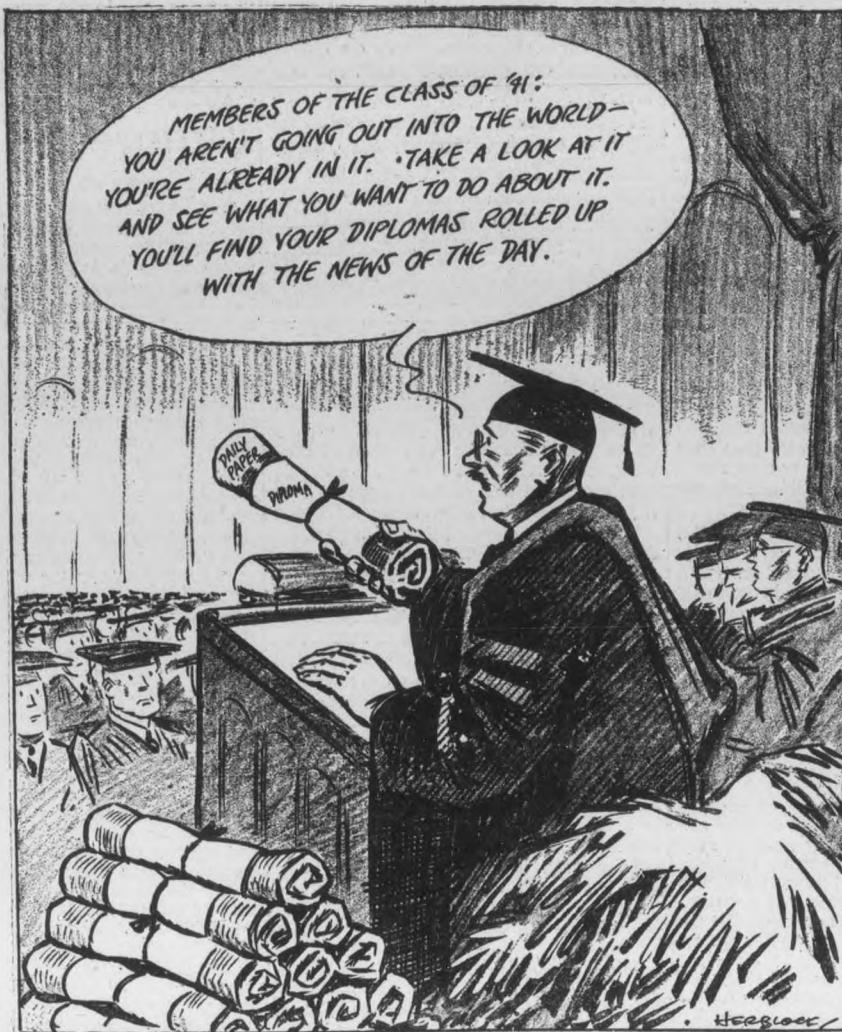

"His attitude was a very unfriendly one—one of hostility toward me. He gave me the idea he didn't like me at all, because I was an American."

Hitler, he went on to say, gave no impression that "he wanted peace or would negotiate for peace."

He said he received from Hitler the impression Hitler and the German people believed the United States would enter the war.

Cudahy was stationed at Brussels when Belgium fell before the Nazis.

Why Canada Maintains High Woolen Protection

By NORMAN MACLEOD
 OTTAWA—One of the situations which the federal ministry is having to explain most often to its low-tariff supporters in the Commons is the fact that the present budget, when it extended sweeping tariff concessions to British imports, left undisturbed the high rate of protection which the Canadian woolen industry enjoys.

Members of the cabinet admit frankly that, at first glance, the situation has an appearance of high inconsistency. With the Canadian public being urged to "Buy British," the logic of them being given every facility to buy woolen fabrics of traditional British quality is appreciated.

Nevertheless, the ministry is satisfied that its policy is justified. And the grounds which they cite are two:

First and foremost, there is the substantial revenue that the woolen tariffs yield.

Secondly, there is the national importance to the Dominion of an efficient woolen industry.

McMurray in B.C.

Motion picture star FRED McMURRAY is in Vancouver, accompanied by his wife, for a reunion with his friend, the former Hollywood actor Colin Tapley, now a flying officer in the R.C.A.F., who is on leave from Regina and will spend two weeks with the McMurrays fishing on the west coast and later visit Jasper and Banff.

Appeasement

VERNON BARTLETT (in a speech in the British House of Commons): "We British are like the two rabbits who were being chased by two foxes. The rabbits ran for their burrow which was too small for the foxes to enter."

"What do we do now?" asked one rabbit.

"Well, I suppose," said the other, "we just say here until we outnumber the enemy."

Bombs Change Churches

DR. JOHN SUTHERLAND BONNELL, minister of Fifth Avenue Church, New York, and formerly a Winnipeg pastor, said in a Trans-Atlantic broadcast over Mutual, that churches suffered from air raids "out of all proportion to other buildings, even in industrial centres, where factories escaped." He had found more than 1,000 churches destroyed or damaged irreparably.

He inspected the ruins of the famous City Temple, of which Dr. Frederick Norwood, now of Vancouver, was minister for 16 years, and found that an Anglican rector had turned over his church to the City Temple congregation.

When Our Lady of Victories, Roman Catholic Church in London, was destroyed, Dr. Bonnell said, the congregation met in a hall, 250 chairs for which were supplied by an Anglican church, while a Protestant gave an organ and the Jewish owner of the building reduced the rent from the equivalent of $35,000 to 25 cents annually.

China Bright Spot

DR. A. J. BRACE of Toronto, secretary of the Y.M.C.A. international committee for Canada and the United States, said in Edmonton "the Far East is the brightest spot in the war front today."

"The biggest reason why China is coming to the fore is that since the establishment of the republic in 1911 Chiang-Kai-Shek has unified the country and given it roads, airlines and national banks," he said.

"China wants peace just as badly as we do, but only when Japanese troops are removed from the country."

"After four years of undeclared war the Japanese are in control of five provinces. Chiang-Kai-Shek still has sway over 300,000,000 Chinese and nine provinces."

"If Japan got peace, and were allowed to keep her five provinces, she could grow enough cotton to put the United States out of business."

Why Canada Maintains High Woolen Protection

By NORMAN MACLEOD
 OTTAWA—One of the situations which the federal ministry is having to explain most often to its low-tariff supporters in the Commons is the fact that the present budget, when it extended sweeping tariff concessions to British imports, left undisturbed the high rate of protection which the Canadian woolen industry enjoys.

Members of the cabinet admit frankly that, at first glance, the situation has an appearance of high inconsistency. With the Canadian public being urged to "Buy British," the logic of them being given every facility to buy woolen fabrics of traditional British quality is appreciated.

Nevertheless, the ministry is satisfied that its policy is justified. And the grounds which they cite are two:

First and foremost, there is the substantial revenue that the woolen tariffs yield.

Secondly, there is the national importance to the Dominion of an efficient woolen industry.

MONEY FIRST

Federal officials do not seek to conceal that it is the revenue aspect of the situation which is their main motive in the course they have followed. They point out that British cloths are of traditionally high quality, that they go into suits worn by people who, for the most part, can afford to pay the tax that the customs duties involve, and that they already occupy the maximum market that the Dominion is likely to afford them. If the duties were removed, officials here believe, it would have very little effect upon the sale of British woolsens in this country, but a very serious effect on the national treasury.

SAVE INDUSTRY

The government's second motive in retaining the woolen duties is the national importance of the industry to the Dominion. This consideration is regarded as secondary at the moment to the revenue aspect, but sufficient in itself to justify the course the government has taken. Ever since the war opened Canada's woolen industry has been recognized by the government here as doing a magnificent job for the country. Without it, the country's army could never have been provided with clothing or blankets in the space of time that it has secured them. The fact that an efficient incense, she could grow enough cotton to put the United States out of business.

Chinese officials, Dr. Brace said, were convinced that just as Japan showed signs of winning the war in the first year and a half, and just as China is now recapturing parts of the territory taken, Hitler will take a turn for the worse, and Britain will come out on top.

Chinese say France, in trying to save Paris, lost France. Britain, they say, is gradually losing bits of London, but will save Britain.

TUESDAY, JUNE 10, 1941

One Year Ago Today

BOTH MR. CHURCHILL AND MR. Roosevelt have turned out phrases since the war began that will be associated with their numerous public utterances and their service to mankind long after the totalitarian experiment has declined to the status of a nightmarish dream. On this day a year ago, down at Charlottesville, the President of the United States coined one that imparted to June 10, 1940, a significance of its own. He added 15 words to the speech he had prepared for delivery at the graduation class of the University of Virginia; his engagement coincided with Italy's entrance into the conflict on the side of Germany. And we said in these columns at the time it was "the sentence which sounded the defeat of Signor Mussolini." Here it is:

"The hand that held the dagger has struck it in the back of its neighbor."

Mr. Roosevelt could not have employed a more apt phrase. Less than a year after, Mr. Churchill described the man who had driven the stiletto between the shoulder blades of a prostrate France as "this whipped jackal . . . who to save his own skin made all Italy a vassal state to Hitler," and who now "comes frisking up at the side of the German tiger with yelps not only of appetite . . . but even of triumph." In that speech at Charlottesville, it will be recalled, the President informed the whole world how he had offered his good offices to the head of the administration in Rome in attempts to prevent the extension of the conflict, how he had expressed his personal willingness to transmit any suggestions Signor Mussolini might be prepared to make to Great Britain and France in the matter of Italy's outstanding grievances, and how he had promised also to use what influence he might possess to bring about a better relationship between all the nations.

None of these suggestions had been welcomed by the head of the Italian government. Mussolini had rejected them out of hand. Italy had scorned "the rights and security of other nations." But by choosing to preserve what it termed its "freedom of action" and to fulfill what it declared were its promises to Germany, the Italian state had "manifested disregard for the lives of the peoples of those nations which are directly threatened by this spread of the war"—and had evidenced an unwillingness to attempt to achieve its aspirations by peaceful means. Having decided to play the role of the calculating and deliberate assassin, the head of the government in Rome has since paid the price invariably exacted of his ilk. It is small comfort to him that he still remains the nominal leader of his country; he knows he is little more than the political tabby cat of his master in Berlin, stroked or cuffed as the exigencies of Hitlerian manoeuvre may determine.

In one short year, then, the man who thought he could get a new empire on the cheap has lost everything for which he had schemed and of which he had dreamed since the memorable March on Rome nearly 20 years ago. Ethiopia, his great and successful imperial venture, is restored to its rightful owner—after half a decade of Fascist rule. Eritrea and Italian Somaliland no longer fly the sign of the Fasces. Italian armies in Libya and Greece were humbled by the forces of democracy; Il Duce's much-vaunted fleet and air armada have crumpled under British blows; to Italy's historic defeats on land, Adowa and Caporetto and Guadalajara, have been added others too numerous for repetition. Just as the "mopping up" process is being applied to the remnants of Fascist armies in scattered and unimportant parts of Haile Selassie's restored kingdom, therefore, so is the date of Mussolini's final eclipse drawing ominously nearer.

Choking With Sawdust

MUSSOLINI HAS CELEBRATED THE first anniversary of Italy's entrance into the war by three profound announcements: One was the severance of diplomatic relations between Rome and Baghdad; another was the announcement that Turkey assisted Greece in her war to defend herself against Fascist aggression; and the third was a challenge to the United States to declare war against the Axis.

Benito refuses to do business with Iraq because, he says, she has only a "puppet" government; who is he but a "puppet" of Berlin? And how comes it that Il Duce has discovered at this late hour that Turkey helped Greece? Was he not going to break Greece's back a few months ago and then had to call in his boss to extricate him from the hopeless mess into which his invading armies had plunged him? Has he forgotten that the week he spent directing his troops in Albania was the most disastrous seven days of the Italian campaign? And we can almost hear Mr. Roosevelt chuckle as he notes the sawdust Caesar's reference to the United States; it is a chuckle that bodes ill for the man whom the President so roundly denounced down at Charlottesville.

One hesitates to predict what Mussolini will be saying 12 months hence—if he is in a position to say or think at all. But if his mental acrobatics between now and June 10, 1942, take after the priceless exhibitions the world has witnessed in recent months, there is a fair prospect he will have to be taken into "protective custody" himself.

Give-and-Take Necessary

DEMOCRAT SENATOR MILLARD E. Tydings took the air last night and explained to his compatriots how loss of time through strikes had seriously hampered the defence program of the United States—and, by the same token, how such disputes had slowed down assistance to Britain and her Allies. He estimated that in the first five months of this year no fewer than 4,000,000 man days had been lost, then proceeded to break down this time into terms of planes of all types that might have been produced if such stoppages had not occurred.

Although the Senator was critical of the administration at Washington for allowing conditions in industry to reach the walk-out stage, for failure to perfect its labor legislation so that arbitration would work effectively, he refused to consider any extenuating circumstances for disgruntled workers who blithely demanded increased wages and ignored the important fact that men in all walks of life had been taken from good jobs and their home ties to do a uniform for a subsistence allowance and the princely sum of $21 a month.

The arguments advanced by Senator Tydings are applicable in a general way to all countries engaged on the job of equipping themselves to defeat the tyranny of totalitarianism. Nor did he spare the employers; both parties to most of the disputes had, to use a colloquialism, "rocked the boat" on a dangerous sea. Sending the military to put an end to the strike at the North American Aviation plant, incidentally, emphasizes the reference President Roosevelt made to labor troubles in his "Unlimited National Emergency" speech, in which he said:

"A nation-wide machinery for conciliation and mediation of industrial disputes has been set up. That machinery must be used promptly—and without stoppage of work. Collective bargaining will be retained, but the American people expect that impartial recommendations of our government services will be followed both by capital and by labor."

Organized labor and privately-owned industry, of course, are in the same boat, in Canada as well as in the United States. Neither the people of this country nor the people in the neighboring Republic are in a mood to permit the stalling of machinery which must be kept running at full speed. They will not tolerate strikes called for trivial reasons, or without completely exhausting every effort to adjust reasonable grievances, any more than they will stand idly by when studied attempts to smash the just rights of Labor make an appearance. But we are not going to achieve a completely strikeless industrial situation devoid of all labor controversy. Britain has not achieved it, and there is good reason to doubt that Germany and Russia have achieved complete industrial concord, even though by force they are able to prohibit actual strikes. Men held to the job by force are not the best or most productive workers. Co-operation and give-and-take, however, can produce the tools for which Mr. Churchill has asked.

Vichy's Problem

SO FAR THE VICHY GOVERNMENT evidently does not consider what is happening in Syria and Lebanon as of sufficient importance to declare war on Great Britain. It is perhaps being interpreted as a "local incident" or a military skirmish that will work itself out without involving a serious breach between the two former Allies. Marshal Petain and Admiral Darlan, of course, must have some idea of what Hitler will do under such circumstances as may arise as a result of the "entrance" of Free French and British troops into the Near East mandated territory.

But there may be much troubling the Nazi-dominated men of Vichy. They must know that if those who have supported them in the new fighting area desert in appreciable numbers, the present state of mind of the people in occupied and unoccupied France is likely to become explosive—likely to find some means of expressing practical hostility to the plan of collaboration with Germany. If there is one condition which Darlan must be fearing, it is such a demonstration at home. He knows the great majority of the French people hate his masters and will hate him still more as events unfold.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King has written to Rex F. Smith, Louisville, Kentucky, expressing appreciation of Mr. Smith's offer to forego his pension for the duration of the war. "Your letter," the Prime Minister wrote, "affords a heartening indication of the interest and determination which the people of Canada and the United States share in common today." Mr. Smith served in the Canadian army in the last war. Three and a half years ago, owing to illness, he was declared unfit for work at his trade.

TAXING MEMBERS' INDEMNITIES

From Ottawa Journal
Mr. O'Brien, M.P. for Northumberland, wondered in the House "if it were constitutional for the government to deduct the Defence Tax from the members' sessional indemnities. If, he argued, members of Parliament were to be considered employees of the Crown then "the very basis of democracy for which we are fighting goes down to the graveyard."

We imagine the member will find the public not greatly interested in his abstruse constitutional argument. Of this we can be quite certain, however—that he would discover extreme resentment if it were seriously proposed that members of Parliament to the extent of their indemnities should be excluded from a tax which everybody else pays.

The answer to his point, however, is that the Defence Tax is paid not merely on salaries and wages but on all income; is, in effect, part of our Income Tax. And $4,000 a session in good Canadian money is income in anybody's budget.

SOUR NOTE

ON AN ERRAND of very doubtful value—that is to say, a brief talk on the Victory Loan hardly heard above the babble of children, the scuffle of Boy Scouts and the painful cries of infants—I have just been up the island, for the first time in many, many months. And one thing I notice about the island is the new and better road. Better, yes, but I don't like it.

It is a magnificent piece of engineering. I will grant you, where they have rebuilt the road in the last few years. Your car just skims along, but instead of driving you are merely sitting at the throttle of a locomotive on tracks. You have nothing to do but sit and think about the income tax. Whereas on the old road you were driving all the time. You were busy. Your abilities were being tested. You were a craftsman with a sense of responsibility, knowing that if you faltered for a moment you were lost.

But, more important, you went slow because you had to. You had time for an occasional look at the scenery. Why, in those days I could recognize most of the road and some of the villages. Now I never know whether I am on the Malahat or near Courtenay. The towns whiz by. The scenic views are a blur from the cab of the locomotive. No one can resist such roads as this. No one will drive slowly on them and they are not intended for that. They are intended for speed, so that you may make Duncan in an hour and 15 minutes, saving 20 minutes in order that you may waste in a beer parlor. And no longer are you traveling a road at all, but merely a smooth railway track. You are back to the old days when we used to go on the E. & N. Soon no one will know the island at all, just the blur out the cab window.

WEED CROP

IT IS TO BE NOTED also that the spring crop of advertising signs on the road is surging up in rank weed growth again, in open violation of the law. One company that makes chocolate bars has smeared its horrid placards all along the highway, cocking its snoot at a provincial government which always bears these insults without protest. The taxpayers will shortly pay men to go up and down the road carefully removing these nuisances, the iron in which is needed for the weapons of war. We have a steel shortage in America and yet they can use steel signs to ask us to eat more chocolate bars. When is the government going to do its sworn duty and enforce the law by fining some of these fellows or, better still, putting them in jail and keeping them on a strict diet of their own candy?

They are still improving the roads this year, still spending money on new construction. Except that this is an election year I can imagine no reason for it. The people want it, however. The government merely does what the people want, as always. And the people have not yet understood that in an all-out war, which is talked about so glibly, you don't build roads. You build tanks that need no roads to travel on.

A UNIFORM TO FILL

(As appealing today as when it was written a quarter of a century ago is this poem found on a scrap of paper from "Tid Bits" in the mud at Ypres in the last war by Tom Wilson, overseas with the First Canadian Engineers Regiment, now residing at 2364 Oak Bay Avenue. With the poem was the following description:

"These verses have been sent from the firing line by Sergeant Woollard of the 10th Essex Regiment.")

On the road in stricken Flanders
There's a place that's vacant still;
There's a rifle lying silent,
There's a uniform to fill.
Those at home will hate to lose you,
But the march will soon begin—
On the roads through stricken Belgium
With "The Essex" to Berlin.

In your home securely resting,
Are you there content to stay
While the others guard your honor,
While the Germans toast "The Day"?
For your King and Country need you,
And we want to count you in—
On the road through stricken Belgium
With the Allies to Berlin.

When at length the foe is vanquished,
When the boys come home at last,
Won't you wish that you had listened
Ere old England's need had passed?
But the gate of manhood's open,
For your part can still begin—
On the roads through stricken Belgium
With the Allies to Berlin.

In the lonely wayside graveyards
Sleep the boys whose day is done;
Don't you hear their voices calling,
To complete the work begun?
There are ghostly fingers beckoning
There are victories yet to win—
On the roads through stricken Belgium
With the Allies to Berlin.

When from Mons they fought each foot-step,
When their lips with pain were dumb,
Twice their hope which held the trenches,
Always thinking you would come;
Thro' the frozen hell of winter,
Thro' the shrapnel's racking din—
They have waited, never doubting
That you'd join them to Berlin.

Parallel Thoughts

He that followeth after righteousness and mercy findeth life, righteousness, and honor.—Proverbs 21:21.

God, the great giver, can open the whole universe to our gaze in the narrow space of a single lane.—Tagore.

MAN TO ADMIRE

The world generally gives its admiration not to the man who does what nobody else ever attempts to do, but to the one who does best what multitudes do well.—Macaulay.

CANADA STIRS

The greatest service rendered by the Victory Loan campaign is not the raising of the money, important as that is. It is in awakening the spirit of national unity in this Dominion—and mobilizing that spirit behind the war effort.

It is strange how long it takes us to come around to the doing of certain things which, as Sherlock Holmes would have remarked to his thick-headed companion, are "elementary, my dear Watson." Since the war began there have been parades and local demonstrations, here and there, according to local initiative and local plan. But the past week is the first time in the war when there has been anything in the way of a truly national demonstration of the active and auxiliary services in Canada. It is a safe bet that the war program will move into a distinct new stage, and more effective stage, as a result.

"Seeing is believing" is an old and true motto. But it is not only true that if you want people to believe in the reality of any activity the surest way to accomplish that is to show those people the activity itself. What is more important is that if you want people to participate in that activity the thing to do is to show it to them, and let them catch the spirit of it by mental or spiritual contagion.

I imagine that the same thing was happening all across Canada last week as was happening at one giant parade witnessed near here. The youngsters watching the spectacle compare notes as to which branch of the service they prefer, and why. I think the director of recruiting as well as the professors of psychology could learn a lot of things by systematically compiling the comments from crowds of Canadians watching such spectacles as we had last week.

MARCH AND SING

The rulers of the totalitarian states which now threaten the whole world got where they are today not just because they are wicked and ruthless men, controlling nations with armies more formidable than those of their victims and their enemies. They did so partly because they were better mass psychologists than we were. The human animal loves these public demonstrations and mass spectacles, and the best proof of that is that when deeply moved on any matter human beings will

Nazis Based War Plans On Systematic Psychology

Germany began arming for the present war long before she started building airplanes and tanks, by building up systematic plans for psychological warfare.

These plans are revealed in a comprehensive survey and bibliography of German books and articles on war psychology now being completed in New York for the Committee for National Morale under the direction of Ladislav Farago. Much of the material studied exists only in microfilm copies and is available only to this committee.

One section of the survey deals with psychology in total war. Here are included German psychological writings dealing with weapons of psychological warfare, propaganda, terror, intimidation, the fifth column, strategy and tactics, fields of psychological warfare, national psychology, and psychological espionage.

Problems of the selection and testing of military personnel, which has received emphasis in American military psychology, is only a small and unimportant

HEARD IN THE NIGHT

From Walter Winchell
In the Stork Club: "I never liked him and I always will" . . . In Havana-Madrid: "That's a beautiful dress she has off" . . . At the Castleholm: "If she gains much more weight she'll need a jockey instead of a maid" . . . At Iceland: "How can he have so many enemies without being a success?"

MR. CHURCHILL'S WEAKNESS

Sir Percy Harris, M.P., in The Times, London
Mr. Winston Churchill has no more consistent supporter than myself. But his government has one weakness: It is a one-man government. I have nothing to say against the estimable people in the government, and they are doing their jobs according to their light. But there is not one of them who can meet the Prime Minister as an equal when questions of high policy have to be decided.

ISOLATIONIST CHICAGO

Samuel Grafton in N.Y. Post

Is the average Chicagoan a "typical mid-western isolationist"? First you must catch your average Chicagoan and ask him. Who is he? He rises in the morning and reads the Tribune, which, like a rooster, greets each dawn with an outcry, always directed against the interventionists.

During the day the average Chicagoans who read the anti-isolationist Daily News and Daily Times outnumber, by almost two to one, the average Chicagoans who read the isolationist Herald-American. When the average Chicagoan tunes in to hear the town's most popular radio commentator on foreign affairs, Clifton M. Utley, he hears a sturdy anti-isolationist. Mr. Utley is sponsored by an important store. When complaints were made against his "interventionism" and his sponsor asked for a show of hands, 6,000 average Chicagoans wrote in to support him, while less than 250 average Chicagoans wanted him stopped.

When night comes in over the lake, and your "average Chicagoan" goes to bed, oh, so late, among the bars and night clubs of Rush Street, he does so talking anti to England. Two bartenders giggled when I suggested that Chicago was the "isolation capital."

Desert insects have no wings.

Hollander Sees Bulb Future Here

William Van der Zalm, former bulb grower in the Netherlands, now in business in Toronto, said here today there was no reason why this province should not be able to supply the Canadian bulb market without difficulty and in time production should reach a stage to permit exportation of bulbs to the United States and other countries.

"I experimented last winter with bulbs from B.C. and found they did well and could stand any competition from Holland," he said at the Dominion Hotel.

Preparing to return to Holland from North America when the Germans overran his country, he decided to remain on this continent. His wife and seven children are still in Holland—at Noordwykerhout, near Haarlem, in the centre of the bulb-growing country. After the war Mr. Van der Zalm plans to bring them to Canada to take up permanent residence.

He said: "Canadians take all their blessings so for granted. If they knew how things were in Europe they would not do that."

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — The Shawnigan Women's Institute held their regular monthly meeting in the S.L.A.A. Hall, Mrs. G. Orr presiding. It was decided to donate the usual prizes to the school picnic. The guest speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. V. S. McLachlan, superintendent of B.C. Institutes.

MORE DIABETICS
Diabetes, according to statistical information uncovered by one of the large insurance companies, is on the upswing. Quick facts about it: Primarily it's a disease of middle and old age. Develops usually between 40 and 60 and among people who are overweight. Children, though, may also have the disease. A diabetic may marry and have children provided he doesn't marry another diabetic. Excessive hunger, excessive thirst, loss of weight and strength are symptoms. Boils and carbuncles may be a first sign, too.

Over All Lines

Even the prisoner in his cell, condemned to die, will have a talk with the census enumerator next month. The decennial census will include everyone in Canada, including prisoners and inmates of institutions of all kinds, transients in so-called jungles beside the railway tracks and homeless men who find nightly accommodation in lodging houses.

ANSWER TO BLOCKADE

It is claimed for dehydrated food as developed by Gordon Beardmore, Toronto, that one plane being ferried to Britain could carry vegetable soup to feed 2,000,000 persons. One eight-gallon can of dehydrated vegetable would feed 950 persons.

Canada, England, India, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Eire and Scotland, too, have all paid their contributions to the League of Nations, in full for the year 1940.

WHAT! NO SERGT. MAJOR?

In the United States army the top-ranking noncommissioned officer of a unit is master sergeant, "an executive whose job is general supervision."

Charged with having 1,500 bottles of whisky illegally, an Australian doctor said he bought it with horse race winnings "so the bookies couldn't get it back." Case dismissed.

With present living standards, Australia could maintain a maximum population of 30,000,000, not 100,000,000 as German propaganda claims, said Acting Prime Minister Fadden. Present population is about 7,000,000.

Mobile Canteens Godsend, English Woman Writes

With the Victoria Women's Canadian Club fund for a mobile canteen now well over the $900 mark and well on the way to the required $1,100, particular interest attaches to the letter written by an Englishwoman to Canadian friends, describing her adventures with a makeshift mobile canteen in the blitzed areas, and the great need for more canteens.

"The mobile tea canteen is second only in importance to the ambulance, and if you don't know what to buy—we don't begin to have enough of them. They are the 20th century version of the biblical miracles of loaves and fishes," her letter said. "And there are some strange contraptions now serving in emergencies."

OWN "CONTRAPTION"

For many months she has been driving her own "contraption" in the service of more than 50 searchlight and anti-aircraft gun camps in a Midland county. The men in this area are widely separated and isolated so that they rarely get a chance to get into towns to buy comforts and cigarettes, she said.

"There wasn't a canteen available even if we had the money to buy one, but we were determined to get things to the men just the same. We fitted up an old car as a canteen, stocked it with odds and ends such as razor blades, soap, toothbrushes, electric torch batteries as well as 'smokes,' sweets, chocolate, biscuits and beverages."

"Just as we were ready to start out a spell of bitter weather set in. I was accustomed to the ordinary English winter, but with the roads deep with snow and covered with sheets of black ice I wasn't very enthusiastic. However, we thought about the men out there in their camps and this gave us the courage to start out."

In the first month, accompanied by another member of the W.V.S., she covered more than 800 miles. When they could go no farther on snow-blocked roads they would get in touch with members of W.V.S. ski-runners in the community and deliver the things from the car.

"It was not long before our services to the outposts increased and we have traveled many thousands of miles and our old car is getting pretty shaky," she said.

The canteen now carries a circulating library of books and gramophone records. The crews use it for posting letters and sending telegrams, while stationery and writing materials are supplied, socks collected for washing and mending or "replaced when they get too bad."

Hold Garden Party At Rideau Hall

OTTAWA (CP) — The Earl of Athlone and Princess Alice marked Canada's observance of the King's Birthday yesterday by holding their first garden party at Government House since the visit of the Royal couple to Canada two years ago.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King attended for a few minutes to pay his respects to the vice-regal couple.

SNAKE WAS CHARMED—Patricia Paynter, pretty British model, one of the nine who staged a fashion blitz on South America, finds a live snake makes a nice scarf, though a wriggly one. The models made friends with snakes like this one on a snake farm in Sao Paulo in Brazil, and another model, Susan Hood, descendant of Viscount Hood, after whom the battleship was named, was given a beautiful red, white and blue coral snake as a token of South American friendship. She lost it on the boat on the way back to New York.

Bombs Wreck New Catholic Hospital

LONDON (CP)—Early in the century Mother Burd of the Catholic Nursing Institute had a vision—to build a modern hospital for the care of the sick with limited means. For years she labored. An anonymous donor gave $45,000 to enable the hospital to be completed.

Mother Burd died in February, 1939, but she had lived long enough to see work begun in Lambeth Road, S.E., on the voluntary hospital she had dreamed of.

However, the hospital was bombed and wrecked within a month of completion. The Mother Superior was killed with two of her Sisters on their watch for incendiary bombs. The ruined part of the new building now is being pulled down by demolition squads. "Our Sisters are all doing their bit to pay off some of the remaining debt," Sister Beatrice Denyer, an Institute secretary, said. "Three have joined the civil nursing reserve, one is in A.R.P. work and another is a 'tube' shelter nurse. The money they earn goes into a common pool."

Since the bombing many of the Sisters have been living in the hospital basement, which is not heated. One store room has been turned into a chapel, others into dormitories, refectories and a dining-room.

After the business, a program of patriotic songs included "The Maple Leaf," "There'll Always Be an England," "I'm a Canadian," and choruses from "Rule, Britannia," "Sons of the Sea," and "British Grenadiers"; recitations by Division 1, and Howard Roche, "Who Loves His Country," and little Janet Lee sang "Till the Lights of London Shine Again." By PETE SALLAWAY

PROMOTER JACK TAYLOR of Langford Speedway comes to bat with a few explanations, not excuses he says, of the rather slow program at the opening of the car racing season Saturday night.

Had it not been for Joe Moore's crack-up in the main event, the 1941 opener would have left a real bad taste in the mouths of more than 1,000 cash customers and Taylor admits it. The accident was the only real excitement of the evening. Luckily it did not result in any serious injury to Moore. He will not drive any more this season though, we are told.

But getting back to the program on the whole, Taylor comments: "It was the first one of the season and our organization was rusty. We'll get her oiled up."

From that, we will look for a snappier show with less waiting between events when the next race meet is presented.

No one could be blamed for the mishaps with the cars which were numerous.

Jerry Vantreigh's No. 1 local wagon was working perfectly up to the second heat race when it blew up higher than a kite. A pin in one of the piston rods snapped and the rod blew through the side of the engine block. It was one of those things that couldn't be helped.

Don Olds of Los Angeles tried all afternoon and part of the evening to get parts for the magneto in his car which broke during a warm-up spin in the afternoon. He was unsuccessful in his hunt around town but it wasn't his fault.

Bob Brenton's No. 34 car was tuned for racing in the hotter climate of its home town, New Mexico. The cold sea air here didn't agree with the car's "inards." "Next time," said Brenton, "we'll have her adjusted."

Ernie Spaulding's No. 14 car from Seattle went on the hog at the last minute. Spaulding and his helpers worked feverishly over the bus but were handicapped with lack of light and tools. It was a bad break, one of many which cropped up.

"All those cars are plenty hot and one cannot foresee just when trouble will crop up," Taylor declared. "All the Seattle buggies had been tested out on the Aurora track before coming to Victoria and had shown plenty of zoom. The boys have 12 cars in Seattle and have promised us 10 top-ranking machines for the next meet over here."

Taylor further informed us the big trouble this season will not be to get cars from Seattle but top-notch drivers. It appears that a lot of the boys including Jimmy Symes and Bert Bloomgren are working in plants associated with national defence work and find it impossible to get away to participate in auto races. However, the races will start at Portland shortly and with a new track scheduled to open up between Seattle and Tacoma it is hoped a number of ranking pilots will be attracted to the Pacific Northwest from California points.

Eagles Win Baseball

Whip Tillicums 7-4

Eagles hung another defeat on the lowly Tillicums in last night's senior league ball game, the score being 7 to 4. The win boosted the second-place lodgemen within two games of the leading Chemainus squad. Tillicums, who opened the campaign as defending champions, have been experiencing a rough passage with the result only one victory has been marked up to their credit in six games.

The feathered tribe got away to a two-run lead in the second inning, first sacker Noel Morgan's single sending a pair of runners scampering across the plate.

Series of well-executed bunts and a couple of errors gave the Eagles another four runs in the fifth and they wound up their scoring with a single in the sixth. Tillicums, held scoreless for six innings, cut loose in the seventh and four hits, including a pair for extra bases, gave them four runs. The game was called at that stage on account of darkness.

Stobo worked smoothly for the Eagles, allowing five hits, striking out nine and walking a pair. He was headed for a shutout until that fatal seventh. Jimmy Jenks, starting on the mound for the second time this season, had a lot of trouble finding the plate, with the result he issued 11 free passages to first. That alone was just about enough to lose him the game. The Eagles only got six hits off him. Jenks struck out three.

Fans saw a couple of snappy double plays during the evening with the Tillicums being responsible for both. Stratton, Eagles' outfielder, topped the stickers with two for three.

Short score— R. H. E.
Tillicums 4 5 3
Eagles 7 6 2
Batteries: Jenks and Condon; Stobo and Patterson.

Vander Meer Stages Comeback

BROOKLYN (AP) — Johnny Vander Meer, whose popularity with his fellow Cincinnati Reds last fall was such that Commissioner Landis had to intercede for him in the split-up of the World Series pool, is earning himself back into favor with the world champions.

He may never be as beloved to his teammates as Bucky Walters or some of the rest, but the pitching of the double no-hit south-paw star has been the brightest beacon in the belated rush of the Reds and his one-hitter against the Phillies last Friday night was a masterpiece to which they all point with pride.

"It was the best game he ever pitched," declared big Ernie Lombardi, who caught both his no-hit spectacles in 1938.

The Reds have won eight of their last 10 games, but the performance of Vander Meer is about all that the champs are proud of—that and the fact that they are back in the first division of the National League.

The Reds still are not hitting and a couple of their crucial victories have been outright gifts.

Even Manager Bill McKelvie isn't taking anything for granted.

"We've been doing pretty good with the help of some of the other clubs," he observed. "The hitting is a little better, but not good enough. The pitching has been all right, but that's something that you always need more of."

Vander Meer got off to a fast start, then faltered along with the rest of the club, but he found himself the last time the Reds were in St. Louis.

McKelvie started him with the admonition that if he walked two men he would be replaced. Vandy walked the first man, gave three balls to the next, then made ground out and went on to win easily.

Canadian Red Tabs Play Soccer Match

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND (CP) — Gold Braid and Red Tabs didn't mean a thing when a group of high-ranking Canadian military men played an informal "soccer" game at Canadian Corps headquarters.

Wide-eyed duty clerks who don't often see their "bosses" in shirt sleeves stood at windows and discreetly applauded Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes, 1st Division commander, as he toed a clever pass over to J. B. Bickersteth, warden at Hart House, University of Toronto, and now education adviser to Lt. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Corps Commander.

Three or four brigadiers joined in the fun, including the chief engineer and the deputy director of medical services.

Blenheim Super Stallion?

HOLLYWOOD PARK, Calif.—First results of the $250,000 importation of Blenheim II to these shores are visible at Hollywood Park.

Mayer, Boeing, Northway and Circle S are the pioneers with Blenheim stock in these parts. Now that Whirlaway has become the Prime Minister and Lord High Mogul of the entire turf world, many others will be bidding for the Blenheim boys.

Boeing has Ernie Castle, a filly. Stratton has Sir Blenheim, a mild disappointment to date. Gallant Duke, $16,000 prize of Northway, is the only one that looks like papa.

Mayer will be shooting with Bomb Shelter, from a Sir Galahad III mare, and Thumbs Up. The latter from Gas Bag, Man o' War matron, was top juvenile at Santa Anita. Won three out of five from the best. A grand looker, though wallowed in his first start by Pan Time.

Blenheim's first American crop flashes a riot of colors. Sir Blenheim, a chestnut; Gallant Duke, a bay; Whirlaway, a chestnut; Thumbs Up, a bay. Mahmoud, great unbeaten son of Blenheim, is a grey. He gets his color from the second dam, a Tetrarch.

The syndicate which brought Blenheim across the ocean included Warren Wright of Calumet Farm. When Whirlaway bagged the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, Wright was practically out of the red on the deal. He

Champion Cincinnati Reds Hit Title Trail

St. Louis Returns to Top Roost

Cincinnati Reds are beginning to win like champions, even if they don't always look like baseball's kingpins. A sudden surge has brought the world champions eight triumphs in their last 10 games and lifted them within a half game of third place in the National League.

Cincinnati came off with a 9 to 7 victory yesterday and dropped the Brooklyn Dodgers out of the lead as St. Louis Cardinals trounced New York Giants 5 to 2.

Lonnie Frey, a one-time Dodger, was the big gun in the Reds' victory, driving in four tallies with a homer in the eighth and a double in the ninth, but a two-base error by shortstop Peeewe Reese in the latter inning made both Cincinnati's winning runs unearned. Credit for the victory went to Joe Beggs.

Another fine pitching performance of the day was a six-hitter by rookie Aldon Wilkie of Pittsburgh Pirates, who shut out Philadelphia Phillies 5 to 0. The Pirates got to Lee Grissom for a run in the fourth and finished strong against his relief for pairs of runs in the seventh and eighth.

Chicago Cubs set off a 21-hit fireworks display at Boston to beat the Braves 13 to 6 and give the 19th victory of his long career. Root coasted along, giving 14 hits, but did not allow a single walk. The Cubs bunched seven of their runs into the sixth inning to stow the game away.

Yesterday was an open date for all the American League clubs.

COAST LEAGUE

Ambitious Hollywood, fresh from a decisive victory over San Francisco, tackles league-leading Sacramento in the feature series of Coast League baseball this week.

In taking five out of seven games from the Seals, the Stars didn't seem able to do anything wrong nor the Seals anything right.

The Stars will be able to show just how good they are when they get up against Sacramento on the Senators' home grounds in a seven-game series starting tonight.

It's still anybody's ball game as far as league standings are concerned—with the exception of first place, held by Sacramento with a lead of 11 games.

Only two games separate fifth-place San Francisco from second-place San Diego and Oakland, in the cellar spot, is only four games behind the Seals.

Kicked around by Hollywood last week, San Francisco opens a seven-game series with Seattle tonight.

San Diego, tied for third a week ago and in fourth place last Friday, now rates second because of the strong finish it made against Portland, winning its last four games. Its jump in league standings was caused not so much by its close win of its series as by losses suffered by San Francisco and Seattle.

Only a half-game ahead of Seattle, San Diego will have a pretty good chance to make its second-place position stronger when it starts its series against Oakland tonight.

Los Angeles will entertain Portland, the results probably determining which team will temporarily hold sixth and seventh spots.

Nanaimo Pledge

NANAIMO — Lured to the Civic Arena by a torchlight parade in connection with Victory Loan sales, thousands of citizens, repeating the words of a pledge, solemnly vowed Saturday night to support the Empire until victory is achieved, at the most spectacular demonstration, made colorful by military display, since the war started.

The pledge was signed by Mayor V. B. Harrison and City Clerk Hackwood, on behalf of the citizens of Nanaimo and Brigadier O. M. Martin, and heads of patriotic organizations. The pledge will be sent by the city to Prime Minister Churchill.

The Victory Loan parade started with the Saturday night rush, pipe and bugle bands, the Women's Ambulance Corps and last Great War veterans taking part. Singing of patriotic and religious songs; a solo, "There'll Always Be An England," by Douglas Kirkbridge, and selections by the military bands were interspersed by remarks by Rev. Dr. Western and Rev. R. T. Reed. Active Service Forces handed the torch to Great War veterans, who lighted it and handed it to Mayor Harrison, who promised the Active Service Force that it would be safely guarded and returned to them when they returned victorious.

"INSIDE DOPE" for man who wants to Paint his own Car!

Our Auto Paint and Refinishing department has grown by leaps and bounds. Car owners up and down the Island are delighted by the amazing Beauty Treatments we give even the most disreputable-looking Buses. But we can't handle ALL the business, and if you want to do your own, far be it from us to discourage you. On the contrary, we don't mind actually giving you our operation formula for "Touching-up"—HERE IT IS:

1. Sand area to be painted down to bare metal.
2. Feather-edge old finish around bare metal and clean around feather-edge with Prep-Sol.
3. Thoroughly clean bare metal with Metal-Prep or Dioxidine to remove rust and grease.
4. Spray in one continuous coat sufficient Hi-Speed PX Primer-Surfacer (No. 233-8896) to surface bare metal. Do not over-spray onto feather edge.
5. Wet-sand the Primer-Surfacer.
6. Spray Pyralux Undercoat (No. 233-1670) over Primer-Surfacer and include feather edge. Allow to dry 30 minutes. Pyralux Undercoat is a pigmented sealer. It will fill scratches in Surfacer, stop suction and hold out top coat.
7. Spray one continuous coat of Pyralux Automotive Finish until proper hiding is obtained.
8. Follow immediately with mist coat (10% Pyralux color in No. 3172 Pyralux Thinner). The mist coat causes a reflow which dissolves spray dust and levels out the finish. This coat should be carried over onto the original finish.
9. Polish lightly, using No. 7 Cleaner and Polish.

It's really quite easy IF you know you have the right materials, IF you have about five thousand dollars' worth of the latest scientific equipment and tools, IF you have had several years' experience and have kept constantly up-to-date with the ever changing processes. But if you can't quite measure up to those requirements and DO want a first-class, modern job at no more cost than the old-time "Paint Job," come in and let's give you a figure, and show you the dozens of jobs we have on hand.

Lost Hat Nets $2,000 for Loan

F. J. Baker of the Saanich unit of the Victory Loan campaign has a $2,000 hat.

While canvassing he spent time to convince a north Saanich resident to invest in Victory Bonds. However, he left without results. Two hours later Mr. Baker realized that he has left his hat at the home of this householder. He returned to get it. In the meantime the client had relented and handed Mr. Baker an application for $2,000 in Victory Bonds.

But that was not all, Mr. Baker says. The client has become so imbued with the spirit of the campaign that he is selling other securities to invest in Victory Bonds.

In Oak Bay a woman who was approached by W. S. Cupples said she had sold her car in order to invest in Victory Bonds. After taking her application and conversing with her for a while, the woman decided to cut out her laundry bills and do her washing herself in order to take a heavier subscription.

Heaviest single day reported by one of the salesmen was not credited entirely to the Victory Loan. Among the subscriptions taken by one of the citizen salesmen in his unit was a $35,000 investment in noninterest-bearing bonds. Several such instances as this have been reported, says Mr. Munro.

Present Diplomas To Credit Granters

The Victoria Credit Granters' Association held its last luncheon meeting of the season in Spencer's dining-room today, the presentation of diplomas for graduation in the retail credit fundaments course and the streamline letters course featuring the program.

O. M. Prentice told of the recent four-day convention of credit granters of district No. 10 at Tacoma last month. One of the most important outcomes of the meeting was the warning to watch credit terms, so that after the war customers would be able to meet obligations.

Mr. Prentice told of the talk given by Mayor H. P. Kane of Tacoma. Mr. Kane said the United States was practically in the war, and that it had a job to finish. He stressed co-operation between capital and labor, saying that labor would have to mind its own business or it would ultimately be put under government control.

Mr. Prentice said he saw military and air force bases while over there, and viewed a troop review at Fort Lewis, in which 48,000 men passed the reviewing stand.

Following received diplomas, which were presented by G. A. A. Hebdon: The retail credit fundaments course: Misses R. Bradford, M. Brand, F. Clarke, B. Dawson, P. Garlick, M. George, M. Elrick, G. Four-aces, M. Hall, M. Hannan, I. Pearce, P. Preston, H. Robinson, M. Smith, M. Stancil; streamline letters course, Misses R. A. Davies and I. Gibson and W. A. Crane, H. B. Dawson, L. E. Evenden, V. A. Gill, G. A. A. Hebdon, W. Halborn, P. R. Noel, O. M. Prentice, G. W. Robinson and R. F. Williams.

Walter Fletcher was in the chair.

A car stolen from F. G. Mulliner, 1236 Yates Street, from outside his home last night, was found on the Sir James Douglas School grounds at 8.30 this morning, city police reported.

VANCOUVER (CP)—City police held three Polish refugees, who were picked up at Prospect Point today after complaints had been received they were taking pictures of Vancouver harbor. Defence of Canada regulations forbid this.

When the knights traveled by boat, one of their jacks was hoisted on a lance like a flag. The first Union Jack came into existence in 1606 when St. George's cross of England and St. Andrew's cross of Scotland were incorporated in a flag.

After numerous changes the Union Jack of today was finally formed in 1801 from the crosses of St. George, St. Andrew and St. Patrick of Ireland.

Relatives and friends were down to see the boys off. Roy "Cap" Thorsen, Victoria Daily Times police reporter, says goodbye to girl friend, Miss Jackie Young.

More Strawberries Eaten

Victoria Increases Sale, Tree Fruits Disappear

Increased population and more buying power have meant greater consumption of strawberries in Greater Victoria this year.

The berry crop has been excellent, with perfect weather conditions—cool, lots of moisture and just enough sunshine to prevent mold.

On the other hand the small tree fruits will be almost negligible this year. There will be very few cherries—only about 20 per cent of the usual crop; there will be practically no plums or pears and very few good apples. Early blossoming and no pollination are the causes.

Local retail stores sell dozens of crates of strawberries each day. Pounds of the island's finest are consumed in the barracks of navy, army and air force.

LITTLE EXPORT

Because of this, Saanich growers are making up what they have lost in export. Only one carload has been shipped this year to the prairies; Japanese growers on the mainland have supplied the remainder.

"The season is not as good as we hoped for, but it might be worse," said one grower this morning. "We are taking a cent a pound less than we thought we would get."

Another grower complained about Japanese competition, saying: "The Japanese growers on the mainland are setting our price. We have to come down to their price. We are governed by the Japanese. They were forced out of fishing and now are flooding the land."

No Japanese grown berries from the mainland, however, have come to Victoria this year.

All local strawberries not being sold for the domestic table are on order for canning plants and jam factories. Recently the British government placed an order for 2,000 tons of strawberries, which will be sent to England in barrels, preserved in sulphur dioxide.

The loganberry crop is coming along splendidly and large orders have been taken for wines and canning. Toronto has ordered 4,000 cases of canned logans and growers are most optimistic about this crop.

The large number of service men in the city from the prairies and eastern Canada are more than delighted with the island's strawberries. They are amazed such luscious fruit can be bought so cheaply, and in such quantities.

Three motorists were fined $10 each in City Police Court today when they pleaded guilty to speeding. Fourteen motorists each paid $2.50 on parking charges.

Canada's Part Important in War

Canada is playing an important part in the scientific achievements of the war not only because of the extent of its experimental facilities but because it serves as a connecting link between Britain and the United States, Sir Lawrence Bragg, British representative with the National Research Council, told the Canadian Club today.

"In Canada it is very much easier to do large scale experiments," particularly in flying and marine work," he said.

Sir Lawrence said there were some popular misconceptions as to what science could do. Scientists discovered laws of nature by pure research, while technologists applied their findings, and generally the scientist was 30 or 40 years ahead of the technologist.

"The sort of scientific knowledge being used for war purposes," he declared, "is mostly 30 or 40 years old. For the war, we're turning our scientists into engineers. But it isn't science at all that is responsible for the horrors of war."

Another misconception was the so-called secret weapon, he said.

PRODUCTION SURPRISES
"Germany has sprung surprises, but not of science; rather of production," Sir Lawrence said. "What she has done is not to invent but to produce in vastly greater quantities."

"Some people have imagined that Germany may be feeling the effect of driving out her scientists as refugees, but she may not begin to feel that effect for 30 or 40 years."

Sir Lawrence said it had been obvious since the last war that any nation which prepared itself entirely for war would have an enormous advantage when war came, and that Germany in contrast to the democracies, had been putting her best scientists into war production rather than production of domestic needs.

He said that just before the war the Royal Society in Britain had made a register of all scientists in the country to obtain a view of what he termed its scientific shock troops. About 12,000 scientists were registered, 6,000 of whom could be drawn upon in connection with the war effort.

"By now they are almost all being used," Sir Lawrence declared.

"Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean," possibly the most celebrated song which vaudeville ever produced, has Al Shean taking his own part in the number which he and Ed Gallagher originated 20 years ago. The number is recreated in "Ziegfeld Girl," opening at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow.

In the role of the late Gallagher is Charles Winninger, himself a former Ziegfeld comedian. He wears the same tropical suit, pith helmet and wide-brimmed glasses which Gallagher affected, while Shean wears a replica of his old red fez, blue coat with flared bottom and oversized pants. Shean still has the original costume but it is now a museum piece and he did not wish to take a chance on its falling apart at the seams by wearing it in the film.

THEATRE REVIVAL DESPITE BOMBS

LONDON (AP)—Old Vic is closed, Covent Garden is dark, Drury Lane given over to shows for the troops, the electric glitter of London stage life is gone, but the theatre in Britain is far from moribund.

Both in the capital and the provinces producers are active, giving audiences the best plays and musicals and the biggest stars that wartime conditions permit.

The war has brought about a decentralization of the British theatre and the development of a genuinely national theatre. Many towns which in the old days seldom saw anything but the shabbiest theatrical efforts, now enjoy the first-rate regularly.

Players returning from extended tours report an amazing response in the provincial communities and consider it a bright augury for the post-war theatre of which the nation dreams even now.

Playwriting, producers and managers say, has perked up, further stimulating the theatre at a time when stagnation would be understandable and excusable.

Some of the best-liked productions, however, are revivals, and there is a growing desire to see American plays.

SOUTH AMERICAN GLAMOUR FILMED

Weaving its sparkling story about the stormy romance of a young engineer and an imperious Latin heiress, "They Met in Argentina," now at the Dominion Theatre, brings Maureen O'Hara and James Ellison to the screen along with the new South American favorite, Alberto Villa, in what is said to be one of the season's gayest offerings, enacted against the colorful background of Buenos Aires race track, a waterfront bar and a baronial "estancia" on the pampas.

OAK BAY THEATRE

An array of singers, dancers and comedy favorites, and nine new songs will be presented in "Argentine Nights," Universal musical film, now at the Oak Bay Theatre.

The Ritz Brothers are co-starred in the picture with the Andrews Sisters, swing trio whose songs on phonograph records, radio and the stage are known to millions. A galaxy of hand-picked beauties appear in colorful festival scenes.

YORK THEATRE

"That is why Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer chose San Francisco as the setting for the musical drama, 'San Francisco,' co-starring Clark Gable, Jeanette MacDonald and Spencer Tracy, and being shown at the York Theatre.

"The city's ability to rise out of the ruins a bigger and better San Francisco, following the disaster that leveled it in 1906, was the inspiration for the story and screen play by Robert Hopkins and Anita Loos. They saw in the hectic Barbary Coast period prior and through the earthquake and fire an admirable dramatic theme for a motion picture."

Sees 'Real Peril'

SIR HERBERT WILLIAMS, executive director of the Incorporated Association of Electric Power Companies, told the Croydon (Surrey) Chamber of Commerce the coalition government was one reason "for the many blunders" of the war.

Sir Herbert, attacking the cabinet, declared Prime Minister Churchill needed a "better team" around him if Britain were to be better served.

"In a coalition government you get rottenness and inefficiency," he said. "Half the ministers of the crown I wouldn't hire in business for $500 a year. Furthermore, I wouldn't hire half the war cabinet for $500 a year."

He declared it was a "real peril" to the country that Mr. Churchill "should be regarded as a man beyond challenge of criticism, as a sort of inspired demigod."

He added that what he called the inefficiency of government departments would not improve "until we get a prime minister who will say: 'If you don't do your job, then you'll be fired.'"

Sir Herbert served as Conservative member of the House of Commons from Reading 1924-29. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the combined English universities in 1918 and 1931 and for Wednesbury in 1922 and 1923.

He was parliamentary secretary to the board of trade in 1928 and 1929.

WILL RESIGN AS CHAIRMAN

R.A.F. Men Start Training in U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP)—Royal Air Force cadets started training in United States flying schools today. The first class numbers 500. The scheme will graduate between 6,000 and 7,000 pilots a year.

Eventually all training for the R.A.F. and its affiliates, such as the Royal Canadian Air Force will be completed on this side of the Atlantic.

Training planes and instructors have been loaned by the U.S. army, which has cleared its own flying schools at the following places and turned them over to the R.A.F.: Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Camden, N.C.; Albany, Ga.; Americas, Ga.; Arcadia and Lakeland, Fla.

The R.A.F. has taken over civilian flying schools at Los Angeles, Dallas, Texas; Tulsa, Okla., and Cleveland, Fla. Two other fields will be selected within a few days. Each field will accommodate between 200 and 300 cadets.

The R.A.F. has opened a navigators' school at Miami where cadets are already at work. This school is expected to graduate 600 navigators a year.

With the exception of the Miami school, only pilots will be trained in the United States, there being no classes for air gunners, wireless operators or other crewmen.

Around the Docks

Nootka Drydocked After Retubing

After retubing her boilers at the Bay Street plant, the Victoria Machinery Depot Ltd. today placed the C.P.R. coast freighter Nootka in drydock for hull cleaning and painting. With the completion of the work on her, the Nootka will be in good shape for the season's pilchard oil and general freighting trade along the B.C. coast. She will resume service when released from drydock.

Land and Water Cruise

A combined land and water excursion will be run tomorrow by the Vancouver Island Coach Lines and the Gulf Islands Ferry Company.

Buses will leave the Broughton Street depot at 9 tomorrow morning for Swartz Bay, where the excursionists will transfer to the ferry Cy Peck for a trip through Gulf Island waters, with calls at Fulford Harbor and Cowichan Bay.

Swedish Ships Coming

Stanley A. Page, passenger traffic manager, General Steamship Corporation, announces three northwest cruises in July and August by the Swedish motorships Mirrabooka, Kanangoora and Parakoola, between San Francisco and Victoria and Vancouver.

A limited number of travelers will be accommodated on these cruises, which will take 12 days from San Francisco to northwest ports and return.

These vessels have for several years been operated in the Pacific Australia Direct Line service.

Zamzam Survivors Back in States

NEW YORK (AP)—Three survivors of the Egyptian steamship Zamzam, sunk by a German raider in an attack described by their spokesman as "brutal and premeditated," have arrived aboard a Pan-American Airways clipper, the first survivors to return.

They were Charles McCarthy, a volunteer driver for the British-American Ambulance Corps; Davis A. Scherman, photographer for Life magazine; and Charles V. Murphy, Fortune magazine writer. They were released by German authorities after being held with 137 other American passengers.

(There has been no word of what the Germans plan to do with the 23 Canadians held in occupied France.)
Murphy said the Germans aboard the raider behaved "correctly" toward the survivors. "They patted the children on the head; they didn't machine-gun us," he said.

He added the Zamzam was shelled without warning, and that the incident was "brutal and premeditated."

Britannia Still Rules the Waves . . . Losses Make Small Dent in Royal Navy

Striking power of the British navy has been reduced only slightly despite loss of the battleship Hood, the cruiser York and Axis claims of more warships sunk off Crete. Chart compares reported or admitted sinkings with total number of vessels Britain has on duty in Atlantic, Mediterranean and elsewhere.

POLES TO JOIN COMRADES HERE

Crossing the Pacific as passengers aboard the Japanese liner Heian Maru a group of young Poles have reached Canada to train with the Polish legion for the day when they will again come to grips with the Nazis.

They fought to the last when the Germans overran Poland in September, 1939, and when their country collapsed, they fled for their lives.

Unlike most refugees, these young men appear almost jubilant. They are cheered at the thought of preparing to avenge themselves for the carnage done to their homes and families.

They speak no English but even a casual observer can see that their spirit is excellent. Those who traveled with them across the Pacific reported that there was no moodiness among them, only strong determination to try again.

Also from Poland aboard the ship were a number of Polish families who escaped the country and are now again in a free land after months of horrors.

The Poles, who came across the Pacific from Japan, were for the most part those who had been successful in their own careers before the fall of Poland. They were those whom Polish officials in Canada deemed most worthy of another chance and most likely to help the fight here.

Three Polish engineers came with their families. They, and a Polish doctor, are eager to do whatever they can to help in Canada.

All their stories are the same. They lost all their possessions in the pillage of Warsaw.

Canada Delivering Navy Gun Mountings

OTTAWA (CP)—The first naval gun mounting ever made in Canada has been completed and its firing trials have been made, the Department of Munitions and Supply announced. Regular deliveries to the British Admiralty will begin this month. It is planned to increase output over the next six months.

The twin anti-aircraft machine gun mounting was described as "an intricate and highly sensitive instrument." A complete defensive unit except for gun barrels and breech mechanism, it weighs several hundred pounds.

6 Geological Parties To Explore B.C. Areas

Cariboo district. Since 1934, when the area was last examined, its gold production has shown a threefold increase, and developments at depth have disclosed structures, the relationship of which to the gold deposition is not clearly defined. Study of the geology is thus necessary.

A. C. Tuttle and R. J. Parlee will map the Aiken Lake area in the central part of the province to establish controls for later geological work. Air photography will be used. The project is being undertaken at the request of the provincial government.

Program of field work, mapping and examination of thousands of square miles of mineral areas throughout the Dominion is being undertaken this season by the Federal Mines and Geology Branch, Department of Mines and Resources. Twenty-seven geological parties, several already in the field, and nine topographical parties have been assigned to the work. A feature is the investigation of possible commercial sources of tungsten, chromite and manganese, three strategic minerals, the production of which in Canada has been small. The importance of gold in the war effort is emphasized by the projects designed to guide prospectors in their search for it and to aid in the development of active deposits. Largest project is the exploration of a 40,000-square-mile area east of James Bay, in Quebec.

Two of the geological parties will operate in the Northwest Territories, one in Yukon, six in British Columbia, four in Alberta, one in Saskatchewan, one in Manitoba, two in Ontario, six in Quebec, one in Nova Scotia. Two of the topographical parties have been assigned to British Columbia, two to Alberta, three to Quebec and two to Nova Scotia.

Five of the geological parties in B.C. will be engaged in mapping areas in which deposits of mercury, chromite, gold, copper and other minerals occur, as an aid to prospecting and development. The areas are to be mapped on a four-mile scale and have a total area of approximately 15,000 square miles. Another party will re-examine the geology of a gold-producing area.

A. H. Lang is to continue geological mapping of the east half of the Manson River area, while in the west half, J. E. Armstrong will make a systematic study of the mercury deposits. He will also continue the geological mapping of the area.

C. S. Lord is to commence the geological mapping of the McConnell Creek area.

W. E. Cockfield will continue mapping the east half of the Ashcroft area and H. M. A. Rice will map the east half of the Hope area which adjoins it on the south.

A. F. Buckham will re-examine the Barkerville gold belt in the

Wild Dwarf Cattle Roam Tree-clad Mountains

Yesterday we spoke about huge cattle known as "gaur" and "water buffaloes." How different they are from the wild cattle called "anoas!"

Anoas are natives of the Celebes islands, among the Dutch East Indies. They are described as "dwarf cattle." Most of them stand less than three feet high at the shoulders.

An Anoa, or pygmy buffalo.

Wild anoas wander about tree-covered mountains and seldom are seen. Natives of the Celebes tell strange stories about them. One of their tales says that these little cattle climb trees at night and sleep amid the branches.

That, of course, is just a foolish idea. Perhaps it grew out of some natives seeing anoas walk out of the midst of trees with low branches. Neither the anoa, nor any other member of the cattle family, is fitted with legs for climbing trees.

Anoas have been tamed and put to work in some parts of the East Indies. They are not, however, widely spread over the world. They are likely to die rather quickly when moved to other climates.

A few zoos in the western world have anoas. It is best to keep the bulls apart, since they will fight when placed together. A case of fighting took place this very spring; three anoas -- two bulls and a cow -- were in the same pen at the Whipsnade zoo, near London. The bulls started to fight, and their keepers feared they would damage each other badly with their small but sharp horns. So one of the bulls was taken away and placed in the London zoo.

Great Britain has some interesting wild cattle. They have white hair, and are known as "wild white cattle."

It is not known where the wild white cattle came from. One idea is that they were brought to Great Britain by the Romans about 2,000 years ago. According to this idea, some of the cattle were set free when the Romans left the island.

Whatever the start of the breed, the wild white cattle have been wandering about England and Scotland for hundreds of years. In 1527 a Scotsman wrote about them, saying:

"In the Caledonia wood there are bulls of the purest white. They are more wild than any other beast."

In late times the wild white cattle have lived on only a few large estates. They go about in herds, and some herds have more than 50 members.

HOROSCOPE

JUNE 11

Benefic aspects rule today. It is a good time for accomplishment and persons seeking promotions will find themselves successful. As romance comes under a protective influence, it is a good time to make decisions about matrimony. Women should not listen to the advice of others, today, but should follow their own judgment regarding their personal interests.

London astrologers declare that Italy may soon be deprived of all her colonial possessions. There is a sign read as indicating the collapse of Italian resistance in North Africa. Position of Mars may impel Italy's generals to take desperate risks, which will avail them little.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a happy year. Children born on this day may be practical and even-tempered.

NANAIMO DEATHS

Walter Tom Rowbottom, 75, resident of Nanaimo for the last 53 years, died Sunday night. He was born in Houston, Yorkshire, England, and was a prominent member of the Ancient Order of Foresters.

Funeral services are being held in Nanaimo today for Mrs. Mary Wallace Laird, 65, wife of Robert Laird, mine manager, who died Saturday. Born in Scotland, Mrs. Laird had lived in British Columbia for the past 29 years, 19 of them in Nanaimo. Besides her husband she leaves one stepson, David, Cumberland, and three

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX--My fiance refuses to marry me because I smoke. He says if I will quit, we could be married in six months, but I think that is demanding too much. Yet I am old enough to know this is my one real love. Can he love me very much and still let this stand in our way? GWEN K.

Answer--Doubtless he loves you, but is not so blinded with passion that he doesn't see that if you will not give up a habit that is repulsive to him, that it will be a source of perpetual discord between you.

The idea of a wife who is a chain smoker and who leaves a trail of cigarette butts behind her, evidently does not appeal to him, so it seems that you will have to decide whether you prefer him to your cigarette, or not. You may think he is worth it, or you may decide with Mr. Kipling that a sweetheart is a sweetheart, but a good cigarette is a smoke.

You question your fiance's love because he won't marry you if you continue smoking. How about your end of it? Doesn't it occur to you that he might think that your love was a little less than ardent if you wouldn't give up a pleasant vice for him? DOROTHY DIX.

Bremerton Fire

BREMERTON (AP)--Flames which leaped high above the city's skyline destroyed the Parker Lumber and Hardware Company building and contents here last night in Bremerton's most spectacular fire in several years.

The three-story frame building contained a large supply of kiln-dried lumber and doors and a stock of hardware supplies. For a time the flames and flying embers threatened a millworks and an adjoining service station. Unofficial estimates place the loss at at least $50,000.

MAC AND MAC WIN
SOFTBALL CLASH

In the battle of the hardware shops last night at Central Park, McLennan, McFeely and Prior badly battered Hickman Tye 13 to 2, and moved up to within two points of the league-leading Chinese Recreation Club in the "C" section softball race. The winners got two men back to the home plate in the first inning, another two in the third, and then put everything in the bag and tied it up tightly with a five-run spurge in the fourth.

In a surprise win at the Central Park upper diamond, Spencers blanked Hudson's Bay 8 to 0. Bacon tossed smart ball for the winners, effectively muffling the rival department store's big guns.

U.S. Informed
On Hess Data

LONDON (CP) — The British government "has, of course, kept the United States informed on the subject" of the flight of Rudolf Hess, No. 3 Nazi, to Britain, Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today.

He added he had no statement to make on the Hess affair.

Outside the House an authoritative source said Hess is a prisoner of war, but declined to reveal his doings or whereabouts. The silence will continue, the official said, "because it is absolutely essential that the Germans do not learn what Hess has said."

He explained Hess is a prisoner of war because he landed in military uniform. It is understood the uniform was that of captain in the German air force.
